Women’s Day speaker

TO MARK International Women’s Day, the University of Reading is to hold a special in Conversation event with the author Laura Bates.

She was named Women of the Year by Cosmopolitan, Red Magazine, The Huffington Post and The Sunday Times Magazine, and is the founder of the Everyday Sexism Project.

Over the past seven years, it has collected more than 100,000 testimonies of gender inequality from 25 countries.

She will give the Edith Morley Lecture from 7pm on Tuesday, March 12 at the Edith Morley Building at Whiteknights Campus.

Entry is free, but places should be booked in advance by logging on to www.reading.ac.uk/15/about/newsandevents/Events/Event791902.aspx